This provides a functional, income-producing or owner-user opportunity today, with the ability to utilize the site for industrial purposes while planning for longer-term redevelopment.

In addition to its existing zoning utility, the property's location along a major commercial corridor and near established retail nodes—particularly the Las Estancias area—creates a compelling opportunity for potential rezoning or repositioning to higher and better uses, including retail, multifamily, or mixed-use development (subject to county approvals).
